

Join us in helping make OpenStack simpler to deploy and manage with Ansible.

You're invited to participate!

On Monday, May 18, 2015, Ansible's VP of Community Greg DeKoenigsberg will be hosting the Ansible Collaboration Day at the OpenStack Summit in Vancouver. This Collaboration Day will be the kick-off working session for the new Simple OpenStack Initiative.

What is the goal of the Simple OpenStack Initiative?

Many companies are already using Ansible with OpenStack. Our goal is to create a working group of like-minded companies who will collaborate to drive improvements in the OS-Ansible-Deploy project and the core Ansible OpenStack modules, as well as other Ansible and OpenStack related projects.

Outcomes of the Simple OpenStack Initiative will be decided by the participants, and could include agreed-upon roadmaps, action items and owners, or even new open-source collaborations.

What do we need from you?

This is your opportunity to participate and shape the future of Ansible and OpenStack. We are reaching out to a special list of technology companies and OpenStack users, and we are asking you to:

1. Commit to sending people to the Ansible Collaboration Day on May 18
2. Provide a supportive press quote for the Simple OpenStack Initiative - this quote can simply be an acknowledgement that Ansible+OpenStack is important to your company and that you are excited to be part of the initiative.

What do you get in return?

Along with first-hand access to Ansible developers and direct influence on Ansible's OpenStack roadmap, you can be a founding public partner in this important initiative. We will also be publishing a web-page about Ansible & OpenStack, on which we will be happy to feature your quote and logo, as well as a link to your website.

Please RSVP with the # of people you are sending to the Ansible Collaboration Day and your draft supportive quote by Thursday, April 30th. We will then work with you to finalize the details of your participation and obtain your approvals on our final announcement. Thanks!
